Ecotrack™

The competition quality surface as used at many international events and at home by many elite riders from all disciplines. Ecotrack™ is a blend of mixed fibres and a high-grade industrial washed silica sand. Some blends also include rubber. These are carefully weighed and blended with a wax coating. There are a range of Ecotrack™ surfaces, each designed to meet the particular needs of the different disciplines, e.g., Dressage, Polo, Show Jumping.

Arena Master

An appropriate maintenance machine is essential to ensure the continued performance and extended life span of a synthetic riding surface. Our Arena Master (mounted on a tractor) and Tow Master (Quad bike or 4x4 vehicle tow) are available in varying widths to match your requirements and budget. Specifically designed for the maintenance of synthetic riding surfaces, as it will help you keep surfaces level and groomed.

Polytrack™

Our racing products include Polytrack™ and more information can be obtained through our racing brochure.

Activ-track™

Developed for the smaller professional yard or the owner-rider that wants the benefits of a wax coated surface.

Activ-track™ is manufactured using a blend of our Equicourt washed and cleaned PVC granules, high grade industrial washed silica sand and our wax coating with the addition of our CLOPF® fibre. The addition of the fibre will give the surface additional root structure, giving more stability and energy return. Due to the materials being blended through the manufacturing process, it gives a consistent ride.

CLOPF®

When mixed into sand the fibre helps to create a root structure within the sand, thereby allowing the horse to work more 'on the top' of the surface, rather than 'into' it. It will also provide a little more cushion and improve the energy return up and through the limbs of the horse. The fibre has excellent moisture retaining properties which should reduce the amount of irrigation during the Summer months.

It is simple to install and is very competitively priced when compared with rubber or PVC top ups. The fibre has been added with great success to a number of different grades of sands around the world. We would recommend using high grade, sub-angular silica sand with up to a 15% clay or silt content.

The best surfaces for horse and rider

Martin Collin's end-to-end service - which includes surfaces, groundwork and installation - sets the standard for gallops, arenas and racetracks, combining drainage, membrane, clean stone layer and porous tarmac.

The objective is to enable horse and rider to work to the best of their abilities with the least risk of injury. Whatever your requirements may be, Martin Collins has a solution.

A passion for horses

We are proud to be the UK's top equestrian surface manufacturer & installer, with a growing international operation. We have our origins in Equestrianism. All our senior and client service staff are riders, trainers or owners.

We provide a full construction service and undertake projects which range from the single horse owner to large commercial projects. Our company has a proven track record for quality, durability and performance and we pride ourselves on our after sales service that is second to none.

In 1996, the first purpose built factory was opened in Lambourn Berkshire, UK. This allows all products to be mixed under cover to ensure consistency and quality control. All products undergo stringent environmental testing and we continue to invest in ongoing research and development.

A little about Martin Collins

It was 30 years ago that Martin Collins began developing innovative, synthetic surfaces for equestrian use. As a working pupil with Alison and Alan Oliver, Martin Collins gained permission to ride in adult show jumping classes aged 15. He later worked in yard maintenance for Dick Stilwell and trained his own grade A jumpers, together with those owned by clients.

To subsidise his riding, he was involved in underpinning and technical building work for companies, including Windsor Safari Park and Berni Inns. Initial experiments, that mixed PVC with silica sand, led to mixtures that mimicked turf. Adding various new components with a revolutionarily new coating solution produced the Pacemaker surface. Although not commercially viable, Pacemaker fuelled additional research into recycled products that would lead to surfaces created at an acceptable cost.

Martin remains fully committed to the future of synthetic surfaces. His aim is to continue to manufacture the best synthetic surfaces in the world which allow the horse to work to the best of its ability with the least risk of injury.

“ Praise from our customers ”

“Having ‘Martin Collins’ surfaces at Les Lions Farm for the last 18 years has been invaluable. The tracks are safe and consistent whatever the weather and the ponies really do benefit from using them” – Nick Evans, Les Lions Polo

“Many surfaces abroad lack the bounce and stability of a waxed surface, and without that, you can often undermine a horse’s confidence. Show jumpers would describe a ‘dead’ surface as one when you don’t get a push off the floor. On Ecotrack™ you can place a horse better, the ground is level, they get the same feeling over a jump and the horse can do a better job.” – Ben Maher

“We have seven arenas that are all Martin Collins surfaces and we have up-graded with Martin Collins in the last seven years keeping in line with the company’s own product developments. They are the best to jump on or do dressage on or for that matter for any equestrian use.” – Tim Price, Proprietor, Addington Manor Equestrian Centre

“Having installed our Ecotrack™ lunge surface we have been impressed by the security and confidence it gives our horses. We have also added the special CLOPF® fibre to our arena and have been delighted with the improvement in stability and spring. Both Cinda and I firmly believe that the surfaces have contributed to our success!” – Clayton & Lucinda Fredericks

“We installed our Martin Collins surface towards the end of 2008. Since then my life has been made so much easier, not only because it performs brilliantly but it is easy to maintain as well. The ponies really do ‘float’ off it and all my clients and riders love riding on it. The best comments came from my father (who was not convinced, and was concerned about the expense) and now he thinks it’s the best money he has ever spent! – Katy Carter, Showing producer

“A good quality surface is hugely important when you are riding and training top class dressage horses. We train on a Martin Collins’ surface at home, and to compete at a venue on a Martin Collins’ surface is fantastic as it gives me the confidence that we can perform to the best of our ability.”

– Laura Bechtolsheimer
